RTENIEG THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER .- A resient of Memphis, says the St. Louis Republican, as addressed the Governor ol Mississippi, rccmmending to his attention a scheme for New Orleans 300 miles, or to reduce it from 200 to 900 miles. The effect would be to inrease the current one-fourth, or to give, for high water, a current of seven miles per hour unstead of five, and for low water a current of ve miles per hour lustead of three. A part of this echeme is to dam up Red river near its junction with the Mississippi, so as to throw the waters which seek an ontiet through Rad river into the Atchafalaya and Berwick's bay. Not to damage the commerce of New Orleans, an iron lock is to be placed in the dam so as to let ats into and out of the Misslesippi through Red river. How to Make Buckwheat Cakes -The seaon f r buckwheat cakes has arrived. A writer n the American Agriculturist recommends the oliowing method for making cakes: following method for making cakes:

The finest, tenderest cakes can be made hy adding a little unboilted (or Graham) flour to the buckwheat. Less than a quarter will do. Mix with cold sour milk or fresh (not sweet) hutter-milk, which is the best. The soda—emplyings are dispensed with—when put into rold water, will not act satisfactorily. Bake at once. The heat will start the effervescence, and as the paster rises it will bake, thus preventing it frem falling. Hence the cultivalisation of lightness is attained. The batter rises enowy and teantiful, and the pan-cake will swell to almost undue dimensions, absolutes and tenderest that can be baked withroot a touch of acid. New York, Dec. 8. The Tribure's Washington special says the the English Minister finds the passage in the President's message about the conduct of Great Britain during the late war as rather spicy, but does not think that it will lead to any had feeling between the two governments; while the French Minister thinks that the affirmation of lution of the questions now pendir the United States and France.

John O'Mahoney, President of the Fen Bretherhood, publishes the following card to members of the order, dated the 7th inst.: "You wil have seen in the Jonnal of t nation of ten long-timed malcontents, who have net in this city without legal authority. The xistence of so small a number in so large ody as curs should create no anxiety, alth s capacity to overcome domestic faction, inslated by corrupt motives or by British gold, a has demonstrated already its power to resche law and further human freedom. Bitish prisons are not secure against us, and local factions must give way."

The Herald's Washington special says: It is stated beyond a probability of contradiction that, at the Cabinet meeting yesterday, it was decided that Mallory, except Secretary of the Navy, now in confluement at Fort Lafayette, should be tried by civil tribunal within the next thirty days. It is understood that the matter was brought up for decision by reason of the efforts that have lately leen made by the family connections of Mallory, to obtain his release on parole.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1865

The New York Evening Post has the rep ion of being a radical journal, but it ev ently has no respect for and is disgusted with those men both in Congress and ont of it who appear bent upon doing what they can to hudate and exasperate the Southern people to make the work of restoration as difficult and s elow as possible, and to put off the period o final national harmony as long as possible,

We are therefore gratified to find in that able paper of the 4th the following rebuke of those nischief-makers, men of bad eminence and worse principles, or rather of no principles ex cept their own passions:

Let windy orators, if such be their taste, exhale their empirations in harsh rebukes and indignant ceneures; many of them have no other means of attracting attention, while professions of loyalty just now are cheap; but the legislature of a nation that has won the plandits of the world by its greatness in war should aim to win an equal approbation by its greatness in pasce. As vigor, sternness, paseion, relentless energy and endurance become the one state so magnanimity, kindliness, conciliation, and the sence of justice and humanity become the other. Only narrow minds and corrupt hearts ever desire to humiliate those whom they have conquered, beyond the inevitable humiliation implied in the conquest itself.

There is need of this counsel, because the people of the South, misled by a few of their old politicians, have not exhibited of late the frank and manity spirit which we were nearly all glad to welcome a few months ago. We are not a little impatient with the recent aigns of recalcitration. But there is also need for the same counsel in the comparative manning of Congress. There is hardly compalition amonth.

not a little impatient with the recent signs of recalcitration. But there is also need for the same counsel in the comparative manimity of Congress. There is hardly opposition enough threatened to keep np a wholesome agitation of sentiment; and when such is the case, then bodies of men are apt to run into extremes. They excite each other by reciprocity of fervor, and find no checks in a keen and watchful hostility. But let these legislators remember that the people are looking on, that the press is allve, and that any departure from the genuine, distinctive, fundamental principles of our democratic-republican system will be at once announced and carnestly reproved. "Only

To much of this we heartfly respond, "Only narrow minds and corrupt hearts ever desire to humiliate those" with whom we are to live together as brethren, who form a part of the peo pie of the United States, who have a commo ancestry with ourselves, to whom has descende the common giory won by immortal sires in the cetablishment of the Republic, and who, though many of them were for the time ied into error by designing demagogues, will hereafter be, as they ever were before the late evil days came upon the country, we will not per mit ourselves to doubt, the devoted friends and supporters of our Government and its institutions through evil as well as good report. I they should prove otherwise, It will be attrib mtable, we firmly believe, in great part, to the neclees and ferocious conduct of the slenth hounds against whom the Post levels its Sumper and Wilson have already begun their ructive work in Congress. That body is hardly organized before they commence their reemly devices in favor of discord and sectional hatred, the only effect of which must inequences, to throw the whole country into inextricable confusion, to change radically the ature of our institutions, and finally to pave the way for their destruction.

What, for example, could be more insenand income than the motion of that crackbrained and remorseless agitator, Sumner, to compel the States to make all juries, in cases where ne gross are interested, to consist of six black men and six white one: Why doesn't he require that six of these men shall be women, and six under and six over twenty-five years of age? Why doesn't chusetts, six farmers or professional politicians of the Sumner stamp? He might with as much propriety. We shall see ere long what counta-Congress will give to the schemes of these desperate demagogues, these reckless triflers with the misfortunes and sufferings of a

STEVENS AGAINST BEECHER -Old Thaddeur Stevens, of Penneylvania, the radical leader of the House of Representatives, upon the occasion of electing a chaplain the other day, gave Beecher the following side-thrust:

Mr. Sevens (Pa.) seconded the nominations of the Rev. Massra. Butler and Stockton, saying that they were the most eloquent men in the United States since the fall of Heary Ward Breecher. [Laughter] Beecher, it appears, has lately fallen from the high state of radical perfection by opposing furer blood-letting, and other measures of a similar character, for the conversion of the Southern people, measures which his brethren re gard as efficacious means of grace-quite indis pensable to salvation. Hence, Beecher's "fall.

We are informed that the Fenians of this city, at one of their late meetings, denounced the Serior Editor of the Louisville Journal as having been a leader in the 'Know Nothing' movement in 1855. We have not said one wo against the Fenians, every word we have spoken in regard to them has been for them; we have wished them and we do wish them well. Some of the best of their own men were w. h us n 55, and are not now convinced that they were wrong. The Fenians may yet lears the stern esson that they had better court aid than repel it. God prosper them, but they are not a present strong enough to put on airs.

GEORGIA THE TWENTY SEVENTH STATE -The Legislature of Georgia, it appears by the telment. This makes the twenty-seventh State, the number requisite to make the amendment final, and binding upon the country, as soon as the announcement of its success is made by the pro per authority. We told our readers during the anvaes last summer that the amendm would certainly be adopted during the present year. It has become true.

An sholltion paper says the Constitution survived a four years war. It ought; it was not used —Port Gibson Standard.

Which Constitution do you mean—the Federal or the Confederate? We think that both were "used"-pretty roughly. Probably you think, that, if the United States Constitution had been used according to its strict intent, the Confederacy wouldn't have been at all

The editor of the Louisville Journal says we write more absurdly than we did before the election. We can't say as much for him. We defy him to be smore absurd than he was before the election — Lemocrat.

The Jackson (Miss.) News is advocating he purchase of a magnificent homestead for Jeff Davis, "either in this or some foreign country." But an effort is on foot to send Jeff Davis to a very "foreign country," where, if he is a good Christian, he may get a better home-ad than could be supplied by Mississippi sub scriptions. The Mormons are evidently preparing for war with the United States, and they demand arms from the Federal Governm ediy for that purpose. A march of Sherman to the Great Salt Lake, such as he made to the

The forenoon was character terized by the lime-honored custom of religious worship. Services were held in most of th churches, where many able discourses were dolivered and from whence ascended many devout supplications to the throne of grace. The at endance at each church was large, and we have rarely seen a spectacle more ennobling than that presented in the going forth and return of our people from the respective chapels. Many, many were the social gatherings during the day and evening. The inevitable turker graced the tables of all who were untroubled with stratemed finances. An Indictment was returned on this day, by the Grand Jury of Jederson county, against Palmer, which charges him with alding and assisting Eliten, a clave of S. R. Womack, to make her escape from her owner, in violation of the statutes of Kentucky, which declares such aiding and assisting a fedony, and punishable by confinement in the penitunitary. The defeadant, by his connect, appeared in court, and moved the court to quash the indictment on reveral grounds, which were urged in argument. One point raised by connect is considered decisive of the case, and will only be noticed.

The act of the Kentucky Legislature nuter which the indictment is framed, presupposes the existence of slavery in Kentucky, and the act was intended to protect the right of the master in his property in the slave. With us the samp, the chill, the gloom; With them the surset's rusy bloom; While dark through willowy vietus soon. The river rolled in shade between. Whose light seemed not of moon or sun We spake not, but our thought was one We paused as If from that bright shore Bockoned our dear once gome before;

And stilled our besting hearts to hear The voices lost to mortal ear! Sudden our pathway turned from night; The hills swung open to the light; Through their green gates the sunshine of A long, slant splender downward flowed.

Fown glade and glen and bank it rolled; It bridged the shaded stream with gold; And berne on piers of miet, allied The shadowy with the sunlit side! "fo." prayed we, "when our feet draw nea The river, dark with mortal tear, "And the night cometh chill with dew.

O, Father, let thy light break through! "So let the bills of doubt divide, So bridge with faith the sunless tide!

"So let the eyes that fail on earth, On thy eternal bills look forth: "And in thy beckening angele know The dear once whom we loved below."

THE FUTURE -There are, says the New York ournal of Commerce, two paths open to the ican people, and according to the choice which they make between the two, will depend heir prosperity and happiness. On the one hand they are invited to follow what enthusiasts call the path of "progress." and on the other way, marked out for them by wise fathers.

and men are apt to be led into it by the bright view which is presented to them. They see the beautiful fields through which they are flyited o walk, gleaming with flowers, and rich with Troure. Streams flow through them full of parkling waters; palaces shine respleadent in the sun: gold dashes up from the depths of the vers, glitters in the ravines of the mountains. The path leads, in fact, to a land of universal realth, universal equality, universal peace and prosperity. If human nature were as good, and pure, and holy as the progressive school of politicians believe it, there might possibly be something in their vision of this glerious future. It would then be at least within the scope of magination that men and women could be found, who, notwithstanding their wealth, would descend to the fifth and drudgery of the viler occupations for pure love of their fellowmen. It is just possible to think that there might be some who would work in the gutters, where some one must work if the world goes homes, which the workmen could, if they desired, have quite as luxurious. In short, if human nature were perfectly lovely, the Utopian be realized, and no one covet another's properforward to supply the necessities and luxuries of mankind. But until the nature of man bemes thus pure and perfect, the future toward which these advisers lead us is the wildest vision gerous step. Every plan adopted on the faith of its possibility is sure to fail, and bring disas-

of its possibility is sure to fail, and bring disaster with its failure. The fields toward which they point as will be deserts when we reach them. The streams will be found foul and stagnant; the palaces but rocky heaps; the goldred indeed, but with the redness of blood.

The other path seems less pleasant and attractive in the prospect. The view before us is ragged, the ascent attended with difficulty, to be oversome only by steadfast labor and severe toll. The path is that which our fathers walked in, and by which the nation arrived at substantial prosperity and a large measure of happiness. It leads to nobler success in the future if we follow it. It is the path of cautious, opposed to the property property in the property property and a large measure of happiness. It leads to nobler success in the future if we follow it. It is the path of cautious, opposed to the property property and a large measure of happiness. It leads to nobler success in the future if we follow it. It is the path of cautious, opposed to the property property and a large measure of happiness. It leads to nobler success in the future if we follow it. It is the path of cautious, because of the property property and a large measure of happiness. It is marked out on the future if we follow it. It is the path of cautious, because of the property property property and a large market out on the future if we follow it. It is the path of cautious, because of the property and the property if we follow it. It is the path of cautious, nservative advance. It is marked out on the theory that human nature is weak and erring along the road, that a great spring of human action is the relation of the dependent on the apporting, and the necessity of the service. as well as sinful. There is no such doctrine on not because they are equal, but because they are mutually dependent. The worn shoes of the pilgrim are replaced by his companion, not because he loves the pilgrim, but because he will get from him something which he wants or desires. They are very foolish travelers. who, tired of labor in their particular vocations, put their heads together to claim the luxuries which others seem to have without labor. The future of the nation, on this conservative path, is a future of industry and con sequent prosperity. It is not likely that it will ever lead to universal wealth, and it is certain that it will never lead, either in this or any other state of existence, to universal equality.

The view of the two paths is practical, and the test of new political, financial, and com-mercial theories is a good one, which judges of

THE INDIANS IN THE NORTHWEST, - There can be no doubt that the depredations of the Indiane in the Northwest do much to retard the ettlement and growth of that section. Apart from the murders, which are of frequent occurrence, the stealing of horses and cattle, the sing of buildings, and the destruction of crops alarm the emigrants, and turn the tide of population in another direction. The stories of Indian cruelty and ferocity find their way scross the ocean, and are told at the firesides of those who are preparing to seek a home in this country. This has the effect of preventing emgration to such localities. But the evil does not rest here. So soon as a section is cleared of Indian raids it is in a great measure given up to the occupation of the most turbulent class the rife, and then commences a war between the white and red races, which for the time prevents all chance of development of the long to the commence of development of the long to the lo nothing to the general prosperity of the coun-

To prevent, if possible, conflicts between the THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK Indians and whites in the Northwest, a Commission was appointed to visit the Indians In that region. The head of that Commission Guernsey, has just returned from the scene of its labors, and reports that the Com-Isaues No Circulation-Incurs No Ricks ticipation. Where the Tide meets the North See's swell,
Whose slap is a fish, with a ring lo his m—ith:
And thus runs the legend they tell.

The landlord had a fair danghter, And a suitor of noble degree Paid courte to the maiden, and cave her a rine And vowed her true love to be. And once, and again and again,
The day for the bridal was named,
Yet ever put off with some plants be to
Her false boarted lover had framed.

But once as they walked on the shere, The maiden in bitterness said: "I adjure you new, by the good God above, To premier ma when you will wed." Then drawing the ring from her finger He flung it off in the sea. And said: "As God lives I will wed you the da You restore that ring unto me."

Then home with her extrow she went And eat here if down by the door. And watched the long day till her tather In his fisher's boat unto the sho e. At length the sail gleamed in the sunset, And the keel grated harsh on the saod. And her father strode homeward blamin With but one tiny fish in his hand.

But dressing it now for their meal,
The maiden screams out in surprise;
For the 'ring that her lover had east to the waves
Lo' it flashes its light in her eyes! Then the prond Marquis cried: "Ged wills it! So straightway the pricet will I bring: And I'll give to thy father the inn for his own— Let the sign be The Fish and the Ring."
